AT A GLANCE

What to expect

Loose skin, and usually some fat with it, is removed from the inner or outer thigh and what is left is pulled tight and redraped. Under general anaesthetic, two to three hours.

What it asks of you

No nicotine

Someone at home

For the first fortnight.

A little set aside

For a changed flight or an extra night.

A hospital health check

Weight, blood pressure, diabetes, clotting.

RECOVERY

Day by day

Days 1–2

Two nights in hospital. Sore and tight when you stand, and walking is deliberately short and slow. Compression on from the start.

Days 3–7

The groin end of the wound is the part that complains, because it moves every time you do. Drains usually come out in this window.

Days 8–10 · flying home

Wounds checked and cleared before you fly. Aisle seat, up every hour, compression on for the whole flight.

Weeks 2–6

Desk work at about three weeks. No gym, no stretching the inner thigh and nothing that pulls on the scar until six. Swelling in the legs lasts months, not weeks.

In full, before you decide

You are trading loose skin for a long scar, and the scar is the part people underestimate.

On an inner thigh lift it runs from the groin down the inside of the leg, sometimes as far as the knee. It fades. It does not go away.

Unhappy with the result

Scars that widen or drift down the leg, some looseness left behind, and thighs that are not quite a pair. Correcting any of it means going back to theatre.

A complication

Wound breakdown at the groin is the common one, because the area moves and sweats. Also seroma, prolonged leg swelling, and numbness on the inner thigh that can be permanent.

It is often not done alone

Most people having this have lost a great deal of weight and want more than one area addressed. Doing two on one trip costs far less than two trips, and it also means one longer anaesthetic — which is a conversation to have with the surgeon, not with us.

The anaesthetic

General anaesthetic, two to three hours, with an anaesthetist present throughout.

Most of it is avoidable. Flying before you are cleared, lifting too early, going back to nicotine, or missing a check.

Every step, arranged

You focus on your surgery and your recovery. We arrange everything around it, from your first question to your last check-in.
